

ANNOUNCEMENT OF 18 NOVEMBER 2019 BY WHICH THE “CARLOS V EUROPEAN AWARD –ANTONIO TAJANI EUROPEAN RESEARCH AND MOBILITY GRANTS FOR EUROPEAN STUDIES” OF THE EUROPEAN AND IBERO-AMERICAN ACADEMY OF YUSTE FOUNDATION ARE MADE PUBLIC.

The regulatory bases for the “Carlos V European Award” European Research and Mobility Grants for European Studies of the European and Ibero-American Academy of Yuste Foundation were approved (Official Journal of Extremadura –DOE- issue 92 of 14 May 2018) by Decree 54/2018 of 8 May.

In the seventh base of the abovementioned bases the procedure for the concession of the grants is established as competitive concurrence and that the call shall be approved by the Executive Committee of the European and Ibero-American Academy of Yuste Foundation prior authorisation of the General Secretary of the Regional Government of Extremadura’s Presidency.

The “Carlos V European Award” European Research and Mobility Grants for European Studies deal with European history, memory and integration, where the framework and priority is the profile of the awarded person, institution, project or initiative in each edition and it is with him/her/it that the subject of research and priorities are defined under a multidisciplinary perspective.

In the 12th edition, the Jury of the Carlos V European Award delivered the prize to His Excellency Mr. Antonio Tajani, at that moment President of the European Parliament, acknowledging “a political career of almost 25 years dedicated to the European Union and its institutions as guarantors of peace, democracy, human rights, solidarity and the values it represents”.

On 9 May 2018, Europe Day, Antonio Tajani received the European and Ibero-American Academy of Yuste Foundation’s Carlos V European Award. In his speech, he mentioned the fact that he was a journalist who had been lucky enough to dedicate part of his life to European policy, always seeking to improve the life of European citizens, as “it is them who make the peace, stability and prosperity embodied by the European Union possible”. In the like manner, he highlighted that the greatness of our project emanates mainly from the adhesion to the values of liberty, democracy, the rule of law, equality, respect for human rights, and warns that ““separated, our nations are minuscule and impotent. United, we will be strong enough to overcome any challenge”.

Tajani advocated for a more democratic and transparent European economic governance “that may lead the most disadvantaged regions to social and economic convergence” defending the principle of solidarity and he pointed out that on the day he was elected President of the European Parliament his first words were for the victims of the earthquakes in central Italy who he cannot forget. This is why he donated the endowment of the Award to three of the municipalities where these earthquakes occurred and he requested that the “Carlos V European Award” European Research and Mobility Grants for European Studies, which are named after him, focus on doing research on the European Union’s history, inception and implementation of the mechanisms and principle of solidarity, while aware that much more is needed, but with this gesture he wished to recall that “the European Union is, above all, solidarity with those who are most in need”.

Bearing these arguments in mind, the subject of the 13th edition of the European Research and Mobility Grants for European Studies is: “THE EUROPEAN UNION AND THE PRINCIPLE OF SOLIDARITY”.

In accordance with the competences conferred by article 23.1 of the Subsidies Law 6/2011 of 23 March of the Autonomous Community of Extremadura, I approve the present call of 11 October 2019 prior authorisation of the General Secretary of the Regional Government of Extremadura’s Presidency.

BASES

FIRST. – Objective.

The present call’s objective is to offer 10 “Carlos V European Award” European Research and Mobility Grants for European Studies with an individual endowment of 2.500 EUR each, in order to cover:

- a) The study and desk-based research, in the European field, for the preparation of the contributions that shall be presented in the framework of the Carlos V European Award Doctoral Seminar of Multi-disciplinary Studies on Contemporary Europe, organised in collaboration with the SEGEI (Socio-Economic Governance and European Identity) Research Network and the University of Extremadura and that will take place at the Royal Monastery of Yuste (Extremadura, Spain).
- b) The implementation of the research works carried out in the framework of the call, which will later be published in a joint work by the European and Ibero-American Academy of Yuste Foundation with a prestigious publisher.
- c) The researchers’ mobility in order to carry out their research work, their participation in the doctoral seminar where they shall present their work and their later attendance to the presentation of the research publication.

SECOND. - Orientation and priorities of the call.

a) Specific priorities of the call.

The work lines of the present call that will address the subject “THE EUROPEAN UNION AND THE PRINCIPLE OF SOLIDARITY”, without prejudice to the proposals that candidates may make of other innovative research lines referring to the aforementioned main subject of the call:

a) Specific priorities:

- The contribution of European institutions to European values and objectives throughout history, especially in the area of responses to natural disasters and regarding other challenges that require mutual cooperation and put into practice the principle of solidarity among the Member States through:
  - The development of policies, funds or European programmes.
  - The development, enforcement and monitoring of community laws.
  - The development of European initiatives and policies.
  - Interinstitutional cooperation among the different European institutions and community bodies.
  - Alliances and cooperation with other international bodies and institutions, such as the UN, the Council of Europe or NATO, as an example of the most well-known.
- The role of European Institutions and bodies vs. the role of the Member States and other levels of representation in the development of the principle of solidarity (i.e. regions with legislative power or local authorities).
- The evolution of European institutions’ functioning during the process of European construction and their democratic legitimacy regarding the instruments of European solidarity, especially in cases of natural disasters and/or regarding other challenges that require mutual cooperation and put into practice the principle of solidarity among the Member States. The promotion of European values and citizenship bearing in mind that the European Union is a political community under the rule of law that operates as a single model of international organisation.
- The evolution of the solidarity model and the instruments of solidarity, where very diverse lines of study and analyses may be applied, such as:
  - The development and evolution of the mechanisms throughout history in the process of European construction and in decision making, on behalf of other bodies and institutions –at different levels- as well as on behalf of civil society or citizens in general.
  - The development and evolution of solidarity and citizenship policies.

- The reform of the European Treaties and the development, functioning and efficiency of mechanisms, such as European conventions, to that effect.
  - Multilevel cooperation among European institutions and the Member States, the regions and municipalities as well as with other institutions and bodies, such as businesses, universities, associations, foundations, NGOs, other bodies of civil society and citizenship.
  - The development and evolution of the principle of subsidiarity and the role that the European Union and its Institutions have in relation to those policies that are still the competence of the Member States.
  - The distribution of competences in the European Union in the framework previously mentioned.
  - The development and evolution of reinforced policies.
  - Security and citizen protection.
  - The processes of decision making.
  - European governance and the role of European institutions, especially the European Parliament, regarding the challenge of the response to natural disasters and their direct impact on the citizens who are affected.
- The evolution of the European Union's influence on third countries; the development of foreign affairs and diplomacy in general; the weight of citizens and the role that citizenship and civil society may play in the process of the construction of Europe as factors or elements that may enable us to analyse the future of the model based on soft or symbolic power and diplomacy in external affairs, in the context of the principle of solidarity and its development.
  - The contribution of the European Union to the development and the establishment of the principle of solidarity; its different forms and levels of intensity, as well as the rationale of the mutual rights and obligations among Member States and those of the institutions of the European Union with the Member States and with the citizens, especially in the context of responding to natural disasters.
  - The role of women in the process of European integration and their contribution to the principle of solidarity; its concrete development; the promotion of European values and European citizenship, analysing and doing research on the development of their participation in political processes and those of European unification and construction.
  - The contribution made by people belonging to minority groups on the ground of cultural reasons, origin or belief, their sexual orientation, a disability, different capacities or functional diversity, to the principle of solidarity, its concrete development, to the promotion of European values and European citizenship.

- Considering that the European Union's action in the field of culture is limited and what it does is to complement the cultural policy of the Member States in different fields, that the cultural sector has been one of the most proactive in favour of the process of European integration contributing to achieve the development of the principle of solidarity; European citizenship; democratic stability; the defence of human rights and the promotion of active citizenship we welcome the submission of works that expose the contribution of culture and the cultural sector to the process of European integration and construction and to the principle of solidarity.
- From the first stages of European integration, different European institutions have attempted to have a more active policy in the social field in contrast with the rest of the world. Europe counts with the best levels of social protection and occupies a prominent place in terms of quality of life and welfare. However, the European Union has limited competences in the social field, that mainly depend on its Member States and it constantly faces a wide range of challenges that put the development of that model and the hope to have a more social Europe at risk. Research and analyses should be carried out on how to further improve and develop the social dimension as a pillar to reinforce the principle of solidarity regarding citizens who have suffered the consequences of natural disasters in the EU or/and regarding other challenges that require mutual cooperation and put this principle into practice among Member States as well as the instruments used so far.

b) Horizontal Priorities

Bearing the multidisciplinary character of these grants in mind, works should consider the following facts:

- The history, analysing the process of European construction from its origins in the different fields: political; institutional; operational; the relation between member countries and with their neighbours; accession processes; foreign relations, especially with Ibero-America; the relations with other international bodies or the development of programmes that have enabled the development of the principle of solidarity through exchange, mobility, cooperation, the exchange of good practices, intercultural dialogue and relations among the citizens, businesses, institutions and EU-bodies.
- The recovery of the European memory and initiatives that have fostered the union and the relations between European peoples and citizens leading to an enhanced understanding, analysis and reflection on our common past in order to be better acquainted with those key moments in European history -as far as solidarity is concerned- from an analytic and critical point of view.

- The internal and external political and institutional policies that have led to the current situation including the role played by the different community institutions and bodies. In this point consider important aspects, such as political, economic, legal, commercial, cultural or security ones; or others, such as respect for human rights, cultural exchanges, the development and strengthening of civil society, the role played by languages in these relations and in the efforts of identity developments or development cooperation as key factors in the consolidation of European values, liberty, solidarity, the promotion of intercultural dialogue and the defense of peace.
- The role played by organised civil society in the development and strengthening of the principle of solidarity of the European Union considering the work done by foundations, associations, NGOs, Think Tanks, universities, etc. Another area of concern is to analyse the creation and development of networks, associations and entities of European nature and the role they have played in this process.
- The role played by the mass media in the promotion of a solidary Europe and the promotion of political and diplomatic institutional relations, informing, clarifying, fostering debate and reflection, analysing pros and cons and making citizens aware of Europe's integration process.

Works must, likewise, promote reflection around the future of the EU and the principle of solidarity in their internal development and in a global context, especially concerning response mechanisms when dealing with natural disasters, such as earthquakes, forest fires or floods, as promoters of peace, human rights and European values and when facing other challenges that require mutual cooperation and put into practice the principle of solidarity among the Member States in order to contribute to a better mutual understanding that favours solidarity, good governance, inclusion policies, the fight against all types of discrimination, the promotion of equal opportunities, security, citizen protection and the participation of citizens, especially the young, in the democratic process.
