

ANNOUNCEMENT OF 6 JUNE 2022 BY WHICH THE “CARLOS V EUROPEAN AWARD – CULTURAL ROUTES OF THE COUNCIL OF EUROPE EUROPEAN RESEARCH AND MOBILITY GRANTS FOR EUROPEAN STUDIES” OF THE EUROPEAN AND IBERO-AMERICAN ACADEMY OF YUSTE FOUNDATION ARE MADE PUBLIC.

The regulatory bases for the “Carlos V European Award” European Research and Mobility Grants for European Studies of the European and Ibero-American Academy of Yuste Foundation were approved (Official Journal of Extremadura –DOE- issue 92 of 14 May 2018) by Decree 54/2018 of 8 May.

In the seventh base of the abovementioned bases the procedure for the concession of the grants is established as competitive concurrence and that the call shall be approved by the Executive Committee of the European and Ibero-American Academy of Yuste Foundation prior authorisation of the General Secretary of the Regional Government of Extremadura’s Presidency.

The “Carlos V European Award” European Research and Mobility Grants for European Studies deal with European history, memory and integration, where the framework and priority is the profile of the awarded person, institution, project or initiative in each edition and it is with him/her/it that the subject of research and priorities are defined under a multidisciplinary perspective.

In the 13th edition, the Jury of the Carlos V European Award delivered the prize to the Cultural Routes of the Council of Europe for its work promoting and making possible European values of cultural diversity, respect for the respective identities, intercultural dialogue, and the exchange and knowledge about countries and History. The Jury also expressed its appreciation of the work they are doing to promote cooperation in research and development; the enhancement of European memory, history and heritage; cultural and educational exchanges for young Europeans; contemporary cultural and artistic practice and cultural tourism. It also highlighted the image and position of Europe that is projected by the Cultural Routes abroad and its relations with the rest of the world.

With these arguments in mind, the subject of the 13th edition of the European Research and Mobility Grants for European Studies will be: “Culture, Heritage, History and Memory for the Promotion of European Values, Integration and Peace”.

In accordance with the competences conferred by article 23.1 of the Subsidies Law 6/2011 of 23 March of the Autonomous Community of Extremadura, I approve the present call of 6 June 2022 prior authorisation of the General Secretary of the Regional Government of Extremadura’s Presidency.

- c) The researchers' mobility in order for them to carry out their research work, for their participation in the doctoral seminar where they shall present their work and for their later attendance to the presentation of the published research work.

SECOND. - Orientation and priorities of the call.

The topic of this call will be "Culture, Heritage, History and Memory for the Promotion of European Values, Integration and Peace", taking into account the argumentation and context to be published on Yuste Foundation's website together with this call, and the priorities set out below, without prejudice to the fact that applicants for the grants propose other innovative lines of research on the main topic of this call.

The specific and horizontal priorities to be considered when developing and submitting proposals are the following:

- a) Specific priorities:

- The contribution of the Council of Europe, more specifically through the Cultural Routes of the Council of Europe programme, as well as of the European institutions throughout history to European values and objectives and to peace in Europe and in the world, especially through culture, heritage, knowledge of history, the promotion of memory, through:
 - The development of policies, funds, initiatives or programmes.
 - The development, enforcement and monitoring of community norms and legislation.
 - Interinstitutional cooperation among the different European institutions and community bodies, as well as between the European Union and the Council of Europe, and the various initiatives it undertakes, in particular the Council of Europe's Cultural Routes programme, or with other international bodies
 - Alliances and cooperation of the European Institutions as well as those of the Council of Europe with other international bodies and institutions, such as the UN, UNESCO, NATO, or the World Tourism Organisation (WTO), to mention some of the most well-known.
 - Cooperation programmes and initiatives enabling local and regional actors (municipalities, provinces or regions) to participate in these objectives, as well as civil society actors, such as associations, foundations, networks, or NGOs.
 - The promotion of dialogue, understanding, collaboration, solidarity, and ensuring the defence of European values, freedom, human rights, equality, justice, the rule of law, stability and peace among its members.

- The role of the European institutions and bodies and the Council of Europe vs. the role of the Member States of both institutions and other levels of representation in the development of cultural initiatives and policies, linked to Heritage, or to the study of European history or enhancement of the Memory of Europe (i.e. regions with legislative power or local authorities).

- Cooperation between the Council of Europe and/or the European Institutions with third countries which are not members of such organisations, as well as the role that culture and cultural heritage play or have played in relations with these countries or for the promotion in the rest of the world of the values and principles on which both institutions are based.

- The evolution of the functioning of the institutions of the European Union and of the Council of Europe during the process of European construction and integration and their democratic legitimacy with regard to policies linked to European culture and heritage, as well as the study, recovery and enhancement of European history and memory and its impact, in particular as regards the promotion of European values, peace and stability within the European identity through these initiatives, the concept of European citizenship as well as active European citizenship in democratic processes.
- The evolution of policies, initiatives and actions linked to culture, heritage and European memory where there are many different lines of study and analysis such as:
 - The development and evolution of mechanisms throughout history in the process of European construction and in decision-making, both by other bodies and institutions, at different levels, and by civil society or citizens in general.
 - The development of democracy, human rights, equality, justice, or the rule of law.
 - The development and evolution of solidarity and citizenship policies.
 - The reform of the European Treaties and the development, operation and effectiveness of mechanisms, such as European conventions, to that end.
 - Multi-level cooperation in the field of culture, cultural heritage or the promotion and defence of the European memory between the European institutions or the Council of Europe and its Member States, and the regions and municipalities which form part thereof, as well as with other institutions and bodies such as companies, universities, associations, foundations, NGOs, other civil society bodies and citizens.
 - The development and evolution of cultural policies and the role of the European Union and its institutions, as well as the Council of Europe, have with regard to those policies which are still the competence of the Member States.
 - The division of competences within the framework mentioned above.
 - The socioeconomic development of the territories, at different levels, belonging to the Member States of both the European Union and the Council of Europe.
 - The promotion of tourism.
 - The promotion of social cohesion.
 - The promotion of sustainable policies that contribute to combating climate change and its effects, as well as the development of sustainable cultural and natural tourism.
 - The promotion of equality and human rights.
 - Development and evolution of strengthened policies.
 - The security and protection of the culture and heritage of its territories.

- Decision making processes.
- European governance and the role of the European institutions and the Council of Europe in meeting the challenge of responding to the protection and defence of cultural diversity and common heritage. The economic impact of cultural policies, initiatives and programmes, European cultural heritage, history and memory.
- The evolution of the European Union's influence in third countries, the development of external relations and diplomacy in general, the weight of citizens and the role that citizens and civil society can play in the process of European construction, the strengthening of democracy and the rule of law, and the protection of human rights, as factors or elements that allow us to analyse the future of the model based on soft or symbolic power through culture and cultural diplomacy in foreign relations.
- The contribution of the European Union and the Council of Europe to the development of initiatives, programmes and policies aimed at promoting cultural diversity, the protection of cultural heritage, and the history and memory of Europe.
- The role of women in the process of European integration and its contribution to the process of European integration, European values to the strengthening of democracy, justice, human rights, the rule of law through, or European citizenship, through the culture.
- The contribution of culture to the promotion of European values and of the European citizenship, analysing and researching the development of its role in political processes and European unification and construction.
- The contribution of persons belonging to minority groups, whether for cultural reasons, origin or belief, their sexual orientation or their disability, different abilities or functional diversity, to the process of integration and European integration, to European values, to the strengthening of democracy, justice, human rights, the rule of law, or European citizenship or the concept of European identity through culture.
- Considering that the European Union's action in the field of culture is limited and complements the Member States' cultural policy in various areas, but also that the cultural sector has been one of the most proactive in favour of the European integration process contributing to the achievement of the development of the principle of solidarity, European citizenship, democratic stability, the defence of human rights and the promotion of active citizenship, papers highlighting the contribution of culture and the cultural sector in the process of European construction and integration and the principle of solidarity are welcome.

- Since the early stages of European integration, the various European institutions have sought to have a more active policy in the social field and in comparison with the rest of the world. Europe has the highest levels of social protection and occupies a prominent place in terms of quality of life and well-being. However, the EU has limited competences in the social field, which mainly depends on its Member States, and it constantly faces a wide range of challenges that put the development of this model and desire for a more social Europe at risk. How the social dimension can be improved and further developed through culture could be investigated and analysed.

b) Horizontal priorities.

Bearing in mind the multidisciplinary nature of these grant, papers must take into account the following factors:

- The historical data, analysing the process of European construction from its beginnings in different areas: political, institutional, operational, the relationship between the Member States, both of the European Union and of the Council of Europe, and with its neighbours, the accession processes, external relations, especially with Ibero-America, relations with other international bodies, or the development of programmes which have made it possible to develop such relations through culture, cultural heritage, common history and memory, and initiatives aimed at promoting exchange, mobility, cooperation, exchange of good practices, intercultural dialogue and relations between citizens, businesses, institutions and bodies of the EU.
- The recovery of the memory of Europe and initiatives that have promoted union and relations between the peoples and citizens of Europe, and fostered a better knowledge, analysis and reflection on our common past, in order to acquire a better understanding, from an analytical and critical point of view, of the key moments in Europe's history in terms of solidarity.
- The political and institutional relations, both internal and external, which have led to the current situation, including the role played by the various Community institutions and bodies. To consider here important political, economic, legal, commercial, cultural or security aspects; or others such as respect for human rights, cultural exchanges, the development and strengthening of civil society, the role of languages and linguistic diversity in these relations and in the efforts of identity developments, or development cooperation through culture, as key factors in the consolidation of European values, freedom, solidarity, the promotion of intercultural dialogue and the defence of peace.
- The role of organised civil society in the development and strengthening of European integration and construction processes through culture considering the work carried out by foundations, associations, NGOs, Think Tanks, universities, etc. It is also important to analyse the creation and development of European networks, associations and cultural entities and their role in this process.

- The role of the media in promoting European values through culture and fostering institutional, political and diplomatic relations, informing, clarifying and encouraging debate and reflection, analysing pros and cons and raising public awareness of the European integration process.

The papers should also promote reflection on the future of the EU and the role of culture and cultural heritage, as well as the promotion of the study and enhancement of European history and memory, in its internal development and in a global context, especially in connection with the response that can be given through culture to current challenges and to the promotion of peace, human rights and European values, as well as to other challenges that demand creative and original responses between Member States, with the aim of contributing to better mutual understanding favouring solidarity, good governance, inclusion policies, the fight against all forms of discrimination, the promotion of equal opportunities, security, citizen protection and the participation of citizens, especially young people, in the democratic process.
